

Kirsten Stolz

After earning her Master's in Management (Summa Cum Laude) from Cornell University's SC Johnson Graduate School of Management in 2023, Kirsten Stolz joined JOSEPH E. SCHMITZ, PLLC (JESPLLC) as a Strategy Consultant and Paralegal, where she advises multinational clients on complex legal and business strategies and works closely with senior leadership on mandate-critical priorities. She has supported high-profile government affairs initiatives, managed Inspector General recruitment and training programs in collaboration with The Heritage Foundation, and maintained working relationships with senior incumbent government officials on behalf of a diverse client portfolio. In this role, she has also gained hands-on knowledge of the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA), including drafting FOIA requests and preparing agency responses on behalf of clients.

Prior to Cornell, Kirsten had obtained a dual Bachelor of Science degree in General Management and Business & Economics from EBS Universität für Wirtschaft und Recht, Germany, and Jönköping University, Sweden – both Magna Cum Laude – with a focus on International Studies and Business Administration. She also completed coursework in Business Administration at Stanford University.

Kirsten began her career at Ernst & Young during her final year of undergraduate studies, where she gained valuable experience in IT risk management, data protection, and strategic advisory for clients in financial services and other regulated industries.

After earning her dual Bachelor of Science degree in General Management and Business & Economics from EBS Universität für Wirtschaft und Recht, Kirsten founded Stolz Management Consulting, a firm dedicated to helping small and medium-sized enterprises address business challenges, drive growth, and optimize performance. Through her firm, Kirsten delivered strategic insights and objective advice across acquisition strategy, operational transformation, and market expansion – including leading the strategic takeover of a €2M revenue company and achieving a 17% productivity increase for one client through targeted operational restructuring.

Fluent in both German and English, Kirsten brings a genuinely international perspective to every engagement.
